We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy, which we know, for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undestrable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic npon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus over-coming weakness, and aiding to 5 restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies commonly completely relieve constipation, except of course when of a surgical character. The also tend to overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents, and 50 cents. Barrier Is a Level Plain. Carsten Borchgrevink, in the South ern Cross in 1900, to prove that this was not the case. He succeeded in entering a small bay (which has since disappeared and been merged with the adjoining great bay), and thence getting on to the barrier. Here he made a short expedition and found in the form of a wide, level plain, reaching as far as the eye could see. This demolished the theory of its unassailable character, and opened the way towards the south. Subsequently an Englishman, Captain Scott, succeeded in landing in MacMurdo strait and thence made an expedition southwards. Sir Ernest Shackleton's brilliant expedition in 1908, in which he reached a latitude of 88 degrees 23 minutes, will be known to everybody. "The great bay, running southwest into the barrier, which I have chosen the south pole, has been observed not only by Ross and Borchgrevink, but also by Scott and Shackleton, and thus appears to be a constant formation, something that can be counted Shackleton also thought he saw a ridge of hills at the head of this bay, which would indicate land. After thinking the matter over, I came to arctic ambitions of his own. same situation for a period of 60 years, could not be a chance formation in the barrier caused by the breaking off of icebergs, but must little known magnetic pole. have been produced by underlying land or rising ground. If not, the barrier would have continued its course unchecked and no bay would have been formed.

Cruises Along Ice Barrier. "The day after we sighted the barrier we reached this bay, still in the same situation-about longitude 161 degrees west. It was so full, however, of recently broken up bay ice that there was no quertion of getting in. We therefore took a little run eastwards along the edge of the barrier to await events. The next morning (January 13) we returned, and then found that so much of the ice had floated out that there was an opportunity for us to get in. My belief as to the origin of the bay was strengthened as we got farther south; the formations stood out more clearly and sharply, and at the southern end we could distinctly make out hills and valleys. It was certain that relaxes the tightness and the plaster underlying land or shoals here arrested the course of the mighty glacier, enough.

'After having safely moored the vessel to the ice we set off to find a uitable place for wintering. This iid not take long. About two and onehalf kilometers from the ship, at the foot of a ridge, well protected from the southeast winds, we found an ideal place; and on Monday (January 16) we began to unload our cargo. Two men at once set about the erection of the house, while the rest of the land party continued to bring up the building materials and provisions. With our 115 dogs we had draft power enough, but it was often slow work getting the heavily laden sledges up to the site, which lies at a height of 150 feet. But our dogs know how to draw. It is a pleasure to work with They are all picked animals from Greenland.

His Solidly Built Camp.

"It is three weeks since we began the building of our station, and now everything is ready. The desolate, icy landscape has undergone a great change. The silence is broken. Where formerly only a solitary penguin or the track of a seal crossed the height there now lies a whole little village. Our solidly built little house stands safe and secure, sunk four feet down in snow as hard as rock and supported by backstays on all sides. We have given it the name of Frambeim. Its longitude is about 164 degrees west, its latitude 78 degrees 40 minutes south, so that it is probably the southerly human habitation. Round it are set up fitteen tents large enough to accommodate sixteen men each, for the use of the dogs and as storehouses for our provisions, coal,

First of French Monarchs. History concedes that Clovis I. was the real founder of the French monarchy, although his father, Childeric. held some sort of tribal rule over part of the country which was destined to become France. Clovis was a progressive king and vastly extended his domains during the period of his rule, from 481 to 511. He made endless war on surrounding tribes and took territory right and left by conquest. In 493 Clovis took Paris by storm and thereupon that city became the permanent seat of the French government Clarkesville, Tenn., March 19. -A report received here Thursday morning states that E. H. Garrott found $10,000 in gold stored in the attic of the residence of his sister's, Miss Mary Anna Garrott, near Longview.

In making an alteration in the building, the story goes, Mr. Garrott went into an unused loft under the roof, where he discovered the money stowed away in two large stone jars. The money was mostly in one dollar pieces.

The Garrotts are wealthy. The building in which it was found has been handed down for several generations and the monev was very probably put there by some member of his family.

Horse Trader Luck.

When that little word luck is around, He'll willingly over the country ride; To purchase an old horse hide.

Then feed it corn, hay and oats As if he was feeding a bunch of shoats, And go to the stable each night; To see if every thing is alright.

The slightest noise in the night; And out of his bed in fright And into his jacket, He's out to the barn to see what's the racket.

The old horse is down And to some neighbor he must expound, With this bright excuse: That a horeetrader must bear abuse.

With pulleys and ropes all stout And with a hallabaloo of a shout. They put the horse on his pegs He looks like the news from Ft. Meigs.

To the backs of his plugs the whip he puts.

As if he was bound for the driving foot. Away over the county ridge; To where he crosses the iron bridge, And slackens his terrible speed; And stops to water and to feed.

Ties up his horses' tails And loosens the horse-shoe nails, To piay the loose shoe trick; On old horse-trader, Dick.

Then he strikes the gallops And goes like a swift moving shallop, Riding into town with jaunty swing As if he were a monarch or a king.

On to the right of the jocky rick He sees old "Pat" with a light stick, With which he is tapping old "Bill"; To let him know he's here still.

Look over yonder just one plug; And see horse-trader Dick and his jug; With a mighty leap to the saddle he sprung.

And using his jubilent tongue.

Bob is 4 years old, 15½ hands high, Black and you can't beat his head and ears. These Jacks are sure foal and have proven to be the very best breeders.

This stock will make the season of 1912 at my barn at Crayne, Ky., at $10 except Bob and he at $9, to insure a living colt 3 days old. Care will be taken to prevent accidents but not responsible should any occur I also have a registered Jersey Bull at $1.00 cash. Lawrence Tabor will be at the barn all the time. Come

reported a nice time.
